The Ikusasa Student Financial Aid Programme (ISFAP) has hosted a successful Recognition Dinner, honouring their bursars, funders and donors who have assisted them in funding tertiary students in the year 2017 and 2018.

The dinner was attended by senior executives of distinguished companies such as their founding members - Business Leadership South Africa (BLSA), The Banking Association (BASA), the Association for savings and investments South Africa (ASISA), FirstRand Foundation (FRF) and the South African Institute of Chartered Accountants (SAICA), other professional bodies and all their funders and donors both from the private and public sectors who are the key contributors to the success and vision ISFAP to fund disadvantaged and missing middle students.

ISFAP has identified that the needs of the economy require certain critical skills if the country is to achieve higher rates of economic growth to reduce the triple challenges of poverty, unemployment and inequality.

ISFAP Chairman Sizwe Nxasana reminded everyone in attendance what ISFAP is all about. “ISFAP is an enabler for young people to reach their fullest potential by helping them acquire the skills they need to be geared up for the 21st and 22nd Centuries and the 4th and 5th Industrial Revolutions,” says Nxasana. “Not only that, but we assist corporate South Africa in the private and public sector to get the best candidates that can carry their vision in those companies for the years to come.”

Nxasana says “unlike other student funding models, we are committed to using our strategic intent of SHARED VALUE to connect all stakeholders of our economy to produce a high calibre of skilled young people who are geared up for meaningful participation in the economy,” adds Nxasana, speaking on ISFAP commitment to supporting students that will shape the future of South Africa’s economy.

“The 4th Industrial Revolution is upon us; coming to the fore with Artificial Intelligence, Robotics, Blockchain and Social Media. We are working with companies to assisting in training students for occupations of high demand that will be useful in the future,” he says.

ISFAP is funded by both private and public sector entities and has worked closely with the Department of Higher Education and Training (DHET) and Department of Trade and Industry (dti).
